

BRITISH WARSHIPS AID IN FORCING A RETREAT OF GERMANS ON COAST

ARMED ATTACK OF CRUIZERS AND INFANTRY DRIVE KAISER'S ARMY FROM SEA.

BERLIN ATROCITY CLAIM

Charges Made Against French Who Are Alleged to Have Attacked Red Cross Wagons and Hospitals and Mutilated Wounded Soldiers.

Violent attacks and counter attacks for possession of the seacoast in the extreme north of France continues without decisive results.

A "only one official statement—that Paris—had come through early this afternoon. It threw little light on the situation, being brief and referring to events of yesterday.

The attacks of the Germans were especially severe at Neuport, Dixmude and La Bassée. Tuesday and were repulsed, says the French war office. There was no noteworthy changes elsewhere on the battle front.

News dispatches indicate the sharp fighting in the vicinity of Lille, with a renewal of activity at vital points all along the line.

Counter claims regarding the situation in the east leave much to speculation. There appears, however, but little doubt that the German advance in Russian Poland has been so successful that Warsaw is seriously threatened.

Przenysl, in Galicia, remains in the possession of the Austro-German forces. There has been a renewal of activity in Eastern Prussia without definite result. A statement from Vienna issued yesterday says that the fighting in central Galicia has become more severe and the Austrian attacks are progressing.

A news dispatch from Copenhagen says that German torpedo boats have been engaged with an enemy in the Baltic off the Prussian coast. No details were given.

Albania looks again as a possible influence on the attitude of Italy toward the war. The Italian government today denied that Italian troops had occupied Avlona, which has been threatened by insurgents since the abdication of Prince William of Wied.

At the same time the Giornale D'Italia of Rome declares that there is a state of anarchy at Avlona, intimating that Greece is taking advantage of the disturbed conditions and declares that the Italian government has notified the powers that it will not tolerate a violation of the integrity of Albania.

Rome reports unofficially that the Anglo-French fleet is still bombarding Cattaro, Dalmatia.

Turkey's attitude of course is a matter of concern to all the belligerents. The Sublime Porte is reported to have forbidden warships to enter the Gulf of Smyrna. The inhabitants of Smyrna recently were said to have been in great fear of a naval attack.

An Athens dispatch says two submarines and some aeroplanes are being shipped to Constantinople through

GERMAN OFFENSIVE RESUMED IN FRANCE

SUPREME EFFORT NOW BEING DIRECTED TOWARD TURNING MOVEMENT ON ALLIES' LEFT.

CENTERS ABOUT LILLE

Importance of French City as Center of Communication Makes Its Occupation Desirable.

London, October 21.—A comparison of the official reports from Paris and Berlin leads to the conclusion that all along the western battle front in France and Belgium the Germans have resumed the offensive, but with their supreme efforts directed against the allies' left.

The news supplementing these official communications, however, indicates that on the left at least the allies are not acting merely on the defensive.

Turning Movement Progressing. The great turning movement is undoubtedly developing through the corner of Belgium bounded by France and the sea, but the public remains in a haze as to whether the turning movement is one on the part of the allies to get to the left or whether a German operation to envelop the allies' left.

The impression grows that the Germans are determined to add Dunkirk to the line of the new left along the Belgian coast and the allies are making desperate efforts to hurl back the invaders.

Late reports through Dutch sources declare that the Germans have been repulsed six miles from Ostend and that guns are now used near that city. Other late reports which lack confirmation state that the Germans have abandoned Bruges and nearest reports are that it would indicate that the allies are meeting with some success in their efforts to re-occupy the sea coast.

Fighting Near Lille. The movement along the coast continues to be more or less in the nature of reconnaissance movements while the aim of the fighting on the allies' left centers about Lille which because its railroad and highway connections are of vital strategic importance to the Germans. From Lille two roads run out to the west—one northward to Arras and the other southward to Valenciennes, through a country which is encircled and thickly populated.

The French report contents itself with the assertion that the roads are held by strong forces of Germans while the Berlin communications claim a victory on them. The operations along these roads may also merely be a reconnaissance movement checked by the Germans, but all reports agree that the German resistance at Lille continues to be of the most stubborn nature.

Only the most meagre reports arrived from the eastern war area, but it is clear that the Russians are at least holding their own. Both sides evidently are entrenching and the Vistula river valley is about to become another battlefield of the Aisne.

Divides German Forces. The allies consolidate themselves for the Russian withdrawal from Western Galicia. The Russian Polish border by the coast under a flare of lights. This enabled the English boats to get the exact range and distance of the British warships and the German submarines tried in vain to sink the British ship.

This dispatch is not confirmed by the official press bureau.

PORTUGUESE REVOLT QUICKLY PUT DOWN

Outbreak and Demonstrations Began by Former Army Officer Subdued and Leader Arrested.

Lisbon, Portugal, October 21.—A revolutionary outbreak in the cities of Braganza and Mafra under the leadership of Adriano Bessa, a former colonel, has been promptly put down according to an official announcement made today. Bessa has been arrested and a band of revolutionaries who went out from Mafra are being pursued by the troops. Beyond the stopping of trains nothing was accomplished by the revolutionaries according to reports here.

TO STUDY CARLTON'S BRAIN AS PART OF THESIS WORK

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—The body of Julian Carlton, negro slayer of seven persons at Frank Lloyd Wright's bungalow at Spring Green, which was turned over to the University of Wisconsin, will be examined by a committee of experts after Carlton had starved himself to death in the Dodgeville jail, will be given to a senior for thesis work. It is said to be doubtful whether an examination of the brain will reveal any peculiarities, as there is little evidence to show that mental derangement has any physical effect upon the brain.

NON-RESIDENT STUDENTS HELP SWELL ATTENDANCE

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—Despite the fact that fees for non-resident students have gone up 20 per cent, non-resident students have swelled the attendance at the University of Wisconsin this year more than the students from Wisconsin. The increase this year from Wisconsin alone was only 20, while from out of the state it was 280.

NEGRO MAID TELLS OF BAILEY MURDER

CELIA COLEMAN, MAID AT CARMAN RESIDENCE, DESCRIBES CRIME SITUATION.

A THRILLING STORY

"I Shot Him" Was Cry of Mrs. Carman. Following Her Intentions To Kill Husband.

Mincola, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Celia Coleman, a negro maid in the Carman household, star witness for the state, testified today at the trial of Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, accused of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, that Mrs. Carman had appeared re-arranged a moment after Mrs. Bailey had been shot and said:

"I shot him."

"The next morning about daylight Mrs. Carman came to my room," Celia Coleman said. "O'elia, what did I kill that woman for? I hope you will forgive me. You stick to me and if anything happens to you I'll take care of your little boy."

"On the night of June 30th I served dinner at 6:40. Afterward I started to wash the dishes. Elizabeth, Mrs. Carman's daughter, came into the kitchen. Afterward Mrs. Carman came in. She was dressed in a kimono and had a shawl around her neck. She told Elizabeth to go back into the house. Then Mrs. Carman went out the back door. A minute later I heard a crash of glass and the report of a pistol. Mrs. Carman came in the door again.

"I was standing in the door between the pantry and the kitchen. She said to me 'I shot him.' Then she showed me a revolver. I dressed her in the arm and told her to go into the office. She said she was not going to do anything else. Then I went into the office.

"The body of a dead white woman was lying on the floor near the operating chair. Mrs. Carman followed me into the office. She stayed there about half a minute and then went out to the waiting room. Mrs. Carman was there and so was another man. I went into the kitchen and returned to the office in about a minute.

"The next morning about daylight Mrs. Carman came to my room. She said, 'O'elia, what did I kill that woman for? I hope God will forgive me. You stick to me and if anything happens to you I'll take care of your little boy.'"

"I saw Mrs. Carman later that morning at the breakfast table and she burst into tears. After breakfast she came into the kitchen and told me to forget what I had seen and do as before. Later that day Mrs. Carman came in with her lawyer, Mr. Levy. Mrs. Carman winked at me when he asked what I knew. I told Mr. Levy that I did not know anything.

"Mr. Levy came again the next day. Before he came Mrs. Carman came to me to tell me to tell him I was not down stairs after dinner. She wrote out a statement and I signed it without reading it. He read it, however, and the statement was not true.

"Did you tell the truth at the coroner's inquest?" the district attorney asked.

"I did not," the witness answered.

CHARGE SOCIALISTS NO FEE FOR SPACE

Arguments for Ten Amendments Published in State Pamphlet Free of Charge.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—The belief that the amendments favoring ten constitutional amendments, printed in the election pamphlet, were printed without proper authorization and in violation of law, a Milwaukee man has investigated the matter.

It was explained to him that the correct practices law permits the publication of arguments for or against constitutional amendments, and that a party state committee, and that no fee may be charged for them. The copy for the arguments in question were filed under oath by the social democratic party, and that it was further explained that for the election pamphlet the law does not require a statement of the authorization of the advertising to accompany the theory upon which it is believed the legislature acted in failing to treat such advertising as candidates' statements are treated as that proposed constitutional amendments having been approved by the people on referendum vote, the law on the character of non-partisan issues, removed from political party influences. The advertising favorable to the amendments and collected by a statement against them authorized by insurance men and paid for at the rates specified by the corrupt practices act.

EDLER STARS FOR BELOIT IN MARQUETTE CONFLICT

Raymond Charles Edler, formerly of this city, now a student at Beloit College, was Beloit's star in the game against Marquette university at Milwaukee yesterday. An account of his work as given in the Milwaukee Free Press today follows:

Beloit immediately started a march down the field in the first quarter, and were assisted considerably by halfback Edler, who on an off tackle play, ran forty yards to the Gold and Blue on yard line, before he was downed. Several times afterwards, the paper credits him with having torn off long gains.

A button style which lends itself admirably to wear with a street costume. Made of black kid, light, well sole, medium heel, smart looking round toe.

EFFICIENCY PROBLEM

ANALYZED BY BEATON

PSYCHOLOGY IN BUSINESS, ITS

ESSENTIALS ARE ABLY DIS-CUSSED AT BROTHER-

HOOD.

DO IT AUTOMATICALLY

Personal Fitness, Training and Pleasure Are Factors Necessary.—

Health Is Supreme

Power

Psychology and business efficiency, its new relation to modern day business, taking into detail every paramount phase with which the subject involves, was clearly and definitely defined last evening by Rev. David

Beaton, former pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, in his address before the Congregational Brotherhood's first session of the season. A large number attended the meeting, being an open one.

Dr. Beaton regarded business efficiency today as being a new thing.

People had begun to realize what psychology meant, and were not shying it, or its name, as in the past. Success was one of the principal subjects with which the speaker emphasized. This success comes from three powers, which individuals must possess. They are declared to be the laws of psychology. How the human mind works, was the gist of his remarks.

Stick to Laws

"The trouble with many and most of us is that we want to be humbugged," began the speaker. "We have not studied efficiency. We do not know its powers, or what it means toward the attainment of success. There is no science in humbugging. You may think that when I urge efficiency or psychology in business, I do so with the idea that magic plays an important part. Let me say there is no such thing as magic in the realm of business. We must navigate our vessel in the sea of business according to the laws of navigation. I shall try and talk to the young men, educationally and the young women, particularly interested in. After the youth comes the business man."

"To succeed, a person must have a personal interest, a personal ideal.

He must be able to excite creative power. You ask, what gives a man initiative or ideals? The answer is personal interest." With this idea in mind, Dr. Beaton produced a photograph showing a certain play in the recent world's series as an example of efficiency. The photograph pictured a double play that won one of the title battles. This double play was a great play, and required some extra effort on the part of the star player, who became star after the play was made. Efficiency is the answer, and the speaker used this example many times in the course of his arguments.

"This double play represents the player's ability to a very high degree.

Two and two make four, and completing such a feat in baseball or in any other line, two and two make four. Magic is not the cause for such accomplishments, but the law of geometric progression is.

Do It Automatically

"Can we say this baseball player accomplished the double play by instinct? I believe there is a better word than that. By instinct is the refuge of lazy people or fools. I can better use the word automatically.

Let us take an example from another example. He drives along the roadway, and before him he sees hundreds of objects. How does he pass them?

He has no time to say to himself,

'Now I will pass that object to the right, and another to the left.' He sees his car automatically. What are the facts? Concentration of powers, is the answer. A youth attempting to master the keys of a piano commences by hammering away with his fingers. When he has gradually the novice gains, and gradually smoothness and technique ability is more noticeable. The spirit of the mind is at work, and as the result, after years of practice, the player has attained success at the keys. Magic?

No. The nerve cells of the body and brain have received instruction, not only automatically but with artistic expression.

Now, new science of efficiency is making money and values. There is no value in fish or lumber. The people must make the values, or in other words, the soul is the real thing in the world. Efficiency is value found in the soul. When a student graduates from the high schools, what are they fit for? A youth between the ages of 14 and 16 is valuable. He is in moral danger. And not until that youth can be interested in some trade is he out of danger. When a trade has been learned, the main thought in the youth's mind, then his morals will not be harmed.

Personal Fitness

"An idea or notion is not enough for a business man to possess. Play is an important phase of human life.

Without play, an individual is in danger of losing his achievement. The first necessary need in efficiency in business is personal fitness. The baseball star I have mentioned climbed up. He was fit for the game. His physique was perfect.

Health, I maintain, is the most important factor in success. A soldier in war must have health before he can join the ranks. Lord Kitchener it was, who said to his men that without health they must not fight.

"Next to fitness for the game, this player possessed accuracy. He must be trained. His double play was done automatically, but only after years, perhaps, of training. His eye was perfect. His throw was executed early in his youth. I say training is an absolute necessity.

Life a Hard Thing

"Before I state the third paramount necessity for efficiency, let me say, my dear people, that life is a hard thing. Life and destiny are both hard things. To you young men, who will soon be in the business world, you will be up against it for a time. And to succeed you must possess that third necessity. It is pleasure. Your work must have a certain pleasure in it, or you could not do it successfully. Robert

Bacon's three essentials for efficiency, laid down to the world years ago, were speed, accuracy and spirit.

The physical laboratory will determine what you are fit for in this world.

Speed is time. Accuracy means value.

In one sense accuracy is higher than speed. It is quality. The spirit comes third, and is important. Never overstrain an individual.

Extra Inch Wins

"Recently on Northwestern University field I watched with interest the high jumpers being eliminated as the bar was raised an inch at a time.

Finally two men were left. The bar was placed up another inch, and one of the two was eliminated. What is the result? The man who stuck to it won by one inch. It is the extra inch that wins in life. Work is man's glory and opportunity. Character, which I have not spoken of, is included in all this. In the last analysis success depends on the measure of personal interest in business. Luck there is no luck. It is no easy, short road to success. Work means that you are men of honor, ideals, creative thought and achievement."

The banquet held at six-thirty was an elaborate one, served by the women of the church. The Lewis orchestra furnished inspiration during the early part of the evening. The members of the boys' club were entertained by the brotherhood during the evening.

Dr. Beaton's talk, which commenced shortly after seven o'clock, was principally to the young men.

MARQUETTE BEATEN BY BELOIT ELEVEN

Line City College Aspirants Spring Surprise and Outclass Catholics in Game Yesterday.

The green Beloit college football eleven yesterday sprang a decided surprise and triumph over the Marquette university team on Marquette's field, Milwaukee, by the count of 11 to 0. The scores does not indicate the one-sidedness with which the game was played. Beloit outplaying and outclassing their opponents every moment of play. Beloit, playing right halfback for the Beloit team, did steady work as did Garrity and Ward. Beloit's backfield men, Trowbridge, for Marquette, played the best game for his team. Lawrence players were on the sidelines studying the attack of the Beloiters and Catholics. Lawrence plays both teams later in the season.

The game yesterday was a slugging match in the second half, but no players were ruled out. Beloit scored in the first and second periods respectively. Ward and Klesch did the scoring. The lineups follow:
Marquette—Marks, I. O.; Wring, I. O.; McIlale, I. O.; Lando, C.; Landers, R. A.; Trowbridge, R. T.; Romandino, R. E.; Lawrence, C. B.; Arund, I. H.; McCarthy, R. H.; Cichokel, I. B.
Beloit—Riess, I. O.; Shussey, I. T.; Buck, I. O.; Tracy, C.; Cowen, R. G.; Jacobson, R. T.; Bagebrecht, R. E.; Klesch, C. B.; L. H.; Edler, R. H.; Garrity, I. B.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Fortune Hunter."
One of the greatest comedies ever presented on the stage is Winchel Smith's comedy, "The Fortune Hunter," which is being shown at the Apollo tonight for the second time in this city. Those who saw the full six reels last week were enthusiastic in their praise. If the world had more such comedies it would be a gain for thereby.

Bergundy Girls.
For the last four days of this week a breezy musical comedy is announced for the Apollo. The Bergundy Girls are coming with eight people and with a great little show. The big features will be pretty girls, handsome costumes and catchy songs.

AT THE MYERS.

E. P. Roe's novel, "He Fell in Love With His Wife," is the field of H. S.

Sheldon's charming adventures in the droll comedy and cheerful pathos. Mr. Sheldon does not chew his pencil and wear a frown hunting wild ideas for a play; he just stumbles across a couple of splendid throbs, a good laugh and a string of plotting and he weaves it all into a lovely pattern of entertainment and is refreshed by his fascinating amusement in play-writing. So "He Fell in Love With His Wife" bears the sort of easy work and is a welcomed relief from the labored heart overwrought dramatic fidgets which have been forced upon us the past few seasons.

The wife drops into the husband's neglected wrecked house when he is a widower. That is, the girl becomes his wife suddenly because he wants a hired girl and she has just been the victim of a bigamist and has been lattered by more gossip than she can bear and does not feel able to stand the evil tongues of the village any more and will not stay to do the widower's work. So he, still sobbing for his late entirely satisfactory wife, asks the drooping stricken young woman if she will accept him. It gives her a home and him a house-keeper without ruining anybody's moral tone or starting the gossips—and there is some gossip going on in Mr. Roe's Oakville. The man is a splendid character; the girl is equally heroic and beautiful. But the gossips tattle, try to make trouble, ignore them, while their love grows from one of calm, helpful partnership to one of love and trust and abundance of good luck. But the bigamist is released from jail and comes for the girl with the news that his deceived wife is dead. At the result of the gossip and the threat of the girl's betrayer to kill her husband, she leaves with him.

The husband follows and the big dramatic situation of the play is where he discovers his wife in the man's apartments. He eventually brings the wife back to the Oakville farm and is overjoyed to find that he loves her and she loves him and the gossips are forever shut off.

The United Play company has provided an excellent cast headed by Miss Gertrude Ritchie and furnished elaborate scenic equipment.

"He Fell in Love With His Wife" will be the attraction at Myers Theatre on Thursday, Oct. 22, matinee and night.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Oct. 20.—A. E. Tomlin has gone to the northern part of the state, where he will submit a bid for installing a light plant in one of the northern villages.

Peter Sagen, who for the past five or six years has been a resident of Oklahoma, is spending some time visiting with relatives and friends in and around Orfordville.

Rev. W. S. Carr and wife visited the county seat on Monday and transacted business there.

Ingolf Kvale, son of Rev. O. J. Kvale, has been somewhat under the weather for the past few days, which fact has necessitated his absence from school.

W. E. Tomlin of Evansville is spending a few days in the village on business connected with the lighting plant.

The local lodge of Rebekahs held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. Only the routine business was transacted.

Ed Myhre, who has been confined to the house for the greater part of the summer and much of the time to his bed, has so far recovered as to be able to be up town again, his first visit being made on Monday.

Mrs. Oscar Millard of Lima Center spent the day Tuesday with her parents.

An unusually large number of lady shoppers availed themselves of the fine weather and also of the bargains offered by Janesville merchants, and journeyed to the Bower City on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Jensen of Beloit spent Sunday in the village, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Fossum.

Miss Ella Thoen entertained a few of her lady friends to an informal luncheon on Wednesday afternoon.

PLYMOUTH

Plymouth, October 19.—Miss Mary Anderson of Janesville, who is soon to wed William Kettle, was guest of honor when between 50 and 60 friends planned and carried a surprise on her at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kettle at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Kettle Saturday evening. It was in the form of a miscellaneous and sock shower. The presents were numerous and beautiful. Refreshments were served at midnight after which the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kettle to be many happy returns of the day.

Miss Ida Sprecher returned home Sunday evening, having assisted Mrs. John Zebell with her house work during her sickness.

In spite of the rain and muddy roads, a good attendance was had at the Ladies' Aid at the home of the Misses Beth and Elaine Buskirk last Thursday afternoon, twenty-five being present. The next meeting will be November 19.

Having spent the past few weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth McIntosh who has been quite poorly, and daughter Jennie, Miss Ethel Arnold returned to her home near Beloit Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Emerson of this place, Mrs. Mary Emerson and daughters Mae and Elizabeth of Beloit motored near Oakliff a week ago last Saturday to visit relatives, returning the middle of the week.

Matt Mathewson is having his house treated to a new coat of paint.

WEATHER FORECAST.
Fair tonight and probably Thursday, becoming unsettled in west portion Thursday.

THINK BEFORE YOU LEAP

Voters this fall should think carefully before they lead down the throats of the clever politicians who are wearing all sorts of traps for the unwary. Let them remember that the campaign of Mr. Philipp was based upon economy in state affairs, reduction of state expenses, reduction of taxes. Government for the people of the people and by the people. That he stands for the doctrine of a square deal for all. That he represents the taxpayer, the business man, the manufacturer, the importer, the exporter. That he is a business man who will give the state an administration along these lines. That he is not a reformer in any sense of the word, seeking office to exploit new ideas and further his own political end. He is a man of the people. A self-made man. A man who realizes what a dollar means to earn, what it should bring in return for labor and that he gained prominence in the business world by careful business methods, not high hazard experiments that have cost the taxpayers millions of dollars in hard earned cash. A vote for Philipp for governor means a vote for your own personal interests and the voters will do well to consider this before they fall into the pit dug for them by the ultra progressives who are exploiting Blaine and his conglomeration of party and faction followers, republicans and democrats.

McGOVERN FOR SENATE.

Francis E. McGovern is the republican nominee for the United States senate. He should be supported by republicans for this reason if no other. His opponent has nothing to offer except abuse, double dealing, trickery and exploitation of self and the claim he always has been a "fair minded democrat" when needed. McGovern received a substantial endorsement at the primary. He will doubtless receive a much larger endorsement at the election. It is the duty of republicans to support the republican ticket from top to bottom. To retain party regularity if possible.

THE LESSON TAUGHT.

The burial of the Italian laborer, who for the past five years has lived in our midst. Who has labored and saved that he might return to his native land. Who has aided his fellow countrymen. Who has lived with them in a bunk car when he could have afforded other quarters, that he might be with them and help them. Who died among them. Who was buried with all the honor they could confer upon him. Should teach us all a lesson. It should be brought home to everyone. His simple life. One full of self denial, of devotion to his people, his honest and faithful service for the corporation he worked for and the respect that his fellow workers showed, the last token they could show him, on his death and burial. He lived, he died, but he leaves behind him a memory. He teaches the community a lesson that it can take to its heart. Honest and faithful service he will be rewarded in the world to come for his labors in this earth.

HOME HELPERS.

This is an era of co-operation. The ladies who are instrumental in organizing the Bureau of Home Helpers, should be commended for their labors. It is not a philanthropic movement, but a genuine common sense way of meeting serious problems that confront every home in the city. There are plenty of people who have time at their disposal that they would be glad to convert into cash and people who are in urgent need of this help, so the idea is to bring the two together, to co-operate for mutual benefit. May the effort succeed.

Have you considered your Christmas shopping yet? If not, best start. Do not be fooled by this nice fall weather. Christmas is approaching upon wings and before you know it the time will come to hang up the stockings and wait for Old Santa. In planning for your own Christmas leave just a thought for some one else. Remember that there will be many homes that may not have any Christmas. The Gazette again plans to aid Santa in distributing needed gifts to those who might otherwise be forgotten, so bear it in mind for later announcements. Charity begins at home, but it is not real charity to help the deserving. Just a form of brotherly love. Cast your bread upon the water and it will be returned to you.

If one would read the pro German writers one could believe Germany was a poor afflicted country fighting for its rights. Read the anti German—English, Russian or French writer and one believes that all Germany desires is world rule, militarism, serfdom for the men of fighting age and self exaltation. Meanwhile the congress of the United States passes its war tariff that puts the average American citizen into a condition of servitude to make up the deficiencies that exist from a fool tariff law which the recent war came along just in time to save the face of the administration by giving them an excuse for a war tariff. Voters at the polls next November should remember this and vote for the republican candidates. Send back a good solid republican delegation from Wisconsin to work with other republicans and see how quick business picks up.

For years the ultra radicals of the republican party have rallied at the conservative element who did not approve of their advanced ideas and when successful at the primaries or in convention have abused the men who talked out in meeting opposing their views roundly. Regularity in party was preached until one really came to believe they thought it the true doctrine. Now they fail to nominate an ultra radical for governor so they pick a renegade republican, turn coat democrat and launch him as an independent candidate and think their action perfectly proper. How about party regularity now? The shoe is on the other foot and pinches.

Janesville is a good sound conservative business city. Its men of affairs are not led away by a willow the wisp. Its factories are not subjected to whims and caprices of the fickle public, but produce commodities that are in demand. It is better to live in a city of the calibre of Janesville than in one of mushroom growth with inflated valuations that collapse like a balloon when it is pricked when hard times come. Think it over and see if this is not good sound doctrine.

Arnold Bennett would have us believe that England was right in its defense of France and Belgium and was absolutely impossible. The German writers tell us that present war was brought about by the duplicity of England who for years has sought to undermine Germany. Here is a direct contradiction and some one has misstated affairs. It would not do to say who was the "shorter and uglier" but it would be interesting to hear from "strenuous Teddy" just now in one of his explosive moods.

Strenuous times these days for the diplomats of Germany, England, Russia and France to all declare that the other nations started the present warfare that bids fair to cost thousands upon thousands of lives before the militarism of the various rulers is satiated. No matter who started it, poor Belgium is the worst sufferer thus far.

Uncle Sam is a patient sort of an individual, but this proclamation as regards the Mexican problem is vexing the old gentleman sorely. He does not like the "watchful waiting policy" and would like to see something doing in the direction of spanking the erring brethren across the Rio Grande before they get so sporty that they will try to spank Uncle Sam himself.

Blaine and his friends base their campaign upon the right laid down in the primary election law that if the defeated party wants to get up a rebellion against the winning party they can do so. Never mind what that law reads now, when the next legislature gets through, its own father will not recognize it as his child and this excuse will be something else to remember.

With base ball out of the way, football but a weekly sport, the dopestore on the sporting sheets are having hard work to find something to write about except to guess future seasons. This, the between and betwixt season in athletics.

HELP COMES QUICKLY

When Hyomei is Used For Head Colds, Catarrh or Croup.

When your head is all stuffed up causing you dull headaches, difficult breathing, constant sniffling, and you feel generally miserable, there is nothing quite equal to Hyomei to give quick, effective and lasting benefit—yet perfectly harmless, simple to use and inexpensive.

To get quick and certain relief from catarrh or a cold it is most important that the medication goes directly to the inflamed tissue lining the air passages. That's the Hyomei method. Just put a few drops of antiseptic Hyomei in the inhaler that comes with every complete outfit, and breathe it—you will feel better at once. It clears the head, quickly relieves the tightness in the chest and that choked-up feeling, all disagreeable nasal discharges, watery eyes and dull headaches surely cease. So certain are Smith Drug Co. of the curative powers of Hyomei for catarrh, croup, asthma and similar diseases, that they sell it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.

MAJESTIC
Charming Leah Baird, who lately re-joined the Vitaphone Players, appears tonight in the photodrama "The Upper Hand." She has the support of an all-star cast, including Rex Hitchcock, Wm. Humphrey and Wm. V. Ranous.

You can also see tonight the first views of the destruction wrought at Termonde, Belgium, by the great German aéro guns. And, too the thousands of Russian prisoners held at Königsburg. These excellent war pictures are shown as fast as received, every Monday and Wednesday.

In addition to the 16th installment of the Million Dollar Mystery, tomorrow's program includes an unusually good comedy, "The Band Leader," with Wally Van.

Francis X. Bushman appears Friday in the two-act drama "The Masked Wrestler."

We urge you to see "Classmates" on Saturday. This is another Klaw & Erlanger production, like "The Fatal Wedding." Four acts.

We are pleased to announce that John Bunny, Lillian Walker and Wally Van will all appear in the Broadway Star feature comedy "Love Luck and Gasoline" a week from Saturday. Mr. Bunny appears before, on Tuesday, in "Such a Mighty Hunter."

Whitewater News

NORMAL COEDS HELD INITIATION SATURDAY.

Whitewater, Oct. 21.—About ninety young women, students of the Normal school met at the building on Saturday evening for an initiation of new members of the Young Woman's Christian Association. A procession, followed by a service, was held in the gymnasium. Each girl, dressed in white carried a lighted candle, the candles being extinguished during the service to signify losing one self in the spirit of Christ. Mrs. Virginia Greene sang an appropriate selection and Miss Edith Wheeler was pianist, during the singing of the names of the new members. Miss Miriam Yoder as President, gave the address of dedication, which was followed by a prayer and a song. Mrs. Walter S. Watson then addressed the girls, in her very helpful manner, giving them some thoughts to carry on into their work. Then the candles were lighted again and Miss Yoder led in the recessional. A white carnation was presented to each person. The officers for the year are:

President, Miss Miriam Yoder; Vice President, Margery Griffith; Secretary, Marie Marty; Treasurer, Rachel Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. Gleason welcomed their daughter and twin grandchildren on Tuesday when Mrs. E. P. Downing, Norman and Helen came from Madison to spend a few days. On October 20th the children will celebrate their fourth birthday, this being the first occasion of spending a birthday at the grand parent's home.

Dr. Elizabeth Allison came on Monday to spend the week at the Normal school inspecting those pupils needing medical attention. H. B. Edwards of Eagle came Tuesday to spend the day with his sister, Mrs. J. J. Kestel.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Coe entertained about seventy guests at "500" at their home on North Prairie street Tuesday evening.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, October 21.—The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. E. S. Hull Monday afternoon. Miss Nina Coon has returned to Chicago.

ELECT VICTOR HEMMING PRESIDENT OF FRESHMAN ENGINEERS AT MARQUETTE

Victor Hemming, of this city, and a freshman at Marquette university at Milwaukee this fall, was elected president of his class in the engineering department last week, at a meeting of the students. Hemming was graduated from the Janesville high school last June where he distinguished himself as a basketball star. That basketball at Marquette will be resumed again this year, following the arrival of many stars at the institution, is almost a certainty.

PAIN GONE! RUB SORE, RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Rub pain away with a small trial bottle of old "St. Jacob's Oil."

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil" right on the "tender spot" and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacob's Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, back-ache and neuralgia.

Linger up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

HESSENAUER TRUCK IS HIT BY NEW STREET CAR AT ELEVEN O'CLOCK TODAY

One of Janesville's new street cars was damaged slightly this morning shortly after eleven o'clock when it collided with a motor truck, used as a moving van, and belonging to Hesse-nauer Brothers, draymen of this city. It appears that the moving van was entering South Main street from the alley that leads to the rear of the J. A. Drummond residence. The driver, Charles Hesse-nauer, declares that the car was moving down main street at an excessive rate of speed, and that he could not steer the van in time to avoid the accident. The van the car was moving down Main street car and damaged considerably, while the street car received some bad dents besides losing some of the new paint. Conductor Cutts was running the car.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TWO neighbors of mine have bought automobiles. I started to say that two neighbors owned automobiles, but that is not correct. One neighbor owns a machine, the other is a chauffeur. I never saw anyone yet so much pleased of anything as the man who owns his automobile gets out of that machine. It is not at all an expensive car, in fact it is of the make which people who care more for the appearance of having money than for anything else on earth, are ashamed to own, but it is efficient and comfortable, and swift enough to pass most of the other cars on the road under the guidance of its skilful driver. And if the returns in pleasure of the sum expended could be properly computed, I am sure the investment would be found to be paying at least fifty per cent interest.

For it is never too muddy or too cold or too stormy, too early or too late, for its owner to take that car out. If there is need of its services. Moreover, although built for five, it can carry six or even seven on a pinch. All the children of the neighborhood have had rides in it; it seldom has an empty seat, and when there does chance to be one, the owner will often hail some unknown person on the highways and byways and offer him a lift.

I saw this car go by the other day and someone remarked how shabby it looked for a comparatively new machine. "Yes," I said, "but it is a glorified shabbiness."

The other man bought his machine about the same time and it still looks like a new car. Why shouldn't it? Its owner, or rather its slave, only takes it out now and then when weather conditions are just right; he spends golden hours when he might be out under summer skies, in the garage polishing and repolishing; he dislikes to let children enter his car for fear they will scratch some of his highly polished surface, and he wouldn't give a muddy wayfarer a lift any more than he would a mud turtle.

Yes, his car looks like new, and it may last a little longer, but I call it a poor investment from the point of view of real happiness, for all that. And yet I don't suppose it is for him, since his idea of happiness probably consists of riding around in a spotless car and exciting admiration and envy.

It's all in the point of view. The above sums up many people's whole conception of happiness—the pleasure that comes from making a good appearance. The pleasure that comes from having a hearty, happy-go-lucky good time they are utterly ignorant of, or indifferent to—I don't know which.

Poor creatures, what a flat, tasteless thing life must be to them! And yet I suppose they pity anyone who doesn't think as they do. Perhaps after all, it is they who are right and I am in the wrong. But, somehow, I can't think so.

EVERYDAY TALKS TO EVERYDAY PEOPLE

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

"Let not the sun go down upon your anger."

Mary Deane was angry at her husband. She was not "making believe" this time. She was genuinely angry. Not, she told herself, without good and sufficient reason. Thurston was about the meanest, most stubborn man to be found in seven states and she was through putting up with his fits of temper and obstinacy. She was going home and she was going home to stay. She had taught school once, for two whole years, and she guessed she could do it again. A vision of herself standing up before a class rose before her and it gave her an inward quiver. Somehow, since she had known the shelter of a home of her own this going out against the world to earn her own living had lost its piquancy and flavor; she loved the thought that between the, sometimes, cruel world and she stood a man with a strong pair of willing arms. A man who not by words, but deeds, had enacted the thought that his arms should be her sole defense—and hers should be his recompense. She straightened her shoulders and began to pack her suit case. If she thought along those lines she would never be able to go home. She was going. She was. Thurston was too stubborn; too much set on having his way—too much set on the while.

The case, packed, stood by the door. With trembling fingers she pinned on her hat. She looked about the room she loved so well. The room that was filled with the happiest memories of her life. And she was going to leave it? She picked up the suitcase and hurried down the pathway, not daring to look back. Thurston would see. She would not stand for any more of his stubborn meanness. She hastened on, dodging her next door neighbor, who was hurrying home from a nearby grocery store with something for supper in her hands. The lights of her neighbor gleamed like beacon as she hastened by. They mocked her with their cheery glow. She, poor little woman, thought Thurston and she the only couple who had ever disagreed; who had ever known the humiliation of defeat in a war of words and temper.

She reached the railway station and sat down, rather weak and tired. She would buy her ticket presently; she had an hour before train time. She leaned her head against the wall and shut her eyes. Her parents' pleasant home rose up before her. She could see the surprised look on their faces as she entered. She would not tell them the reason she came. That is, not tonight. She was very tired. If only Thurston was not so stubborn; if only he could see things in a sensible light—but no, he must have his very own way or there was no way. A man should expect to go to social gatherings occasionally. Occasionally? Her conscience gave a decided twinge. She had, to be truthful, wanted Thurston to go on an average of three nights a week and he had rebelled. He had sat down hard and heavy on going out nights so often, pleading that he was not able to keep up his work if he be asked to trot about so often in the evenings.

"Are you going to father and mother's for the night? I am off tomorrow forenoon. I just thought I'd run out there too," said a familiar voice at her elbow.

She sat up with a jerk. "I—I was going, but I'm tired. Let's go back home instead." She was looking into the steady, kind eyes of the very stubborn Thurston.

"Let not the sun go down upon your anger."

Morality and Intelligence.

It almost looks as if intelligence and morality were two distinct things, and that it is safer to have intelligence than morality. A person who has the former may get off scot-free, but to him of weak intelligence his morality is of little avail when it suits the purpose of those who have the power of sequestering him, to use it. —Exchange.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Here is a present for you, Eleanor." "Thank you," listlessly replied the wife without making any move to open the package. "Aren't you going to look at it even?" queried the man as he removed his coat and hat and hung them on the rack. "I'll look at it when I have time," she replied, "but I have two dresses exactly the same shade now."

"This is an excellent piece of goods," she said as her husband re-entered the room, "but I have two dresses exactly the same shade now."

"You will find a difference in tone," he replied accurately. "Besides, you know it is my favorite color for you."

"I think taupe would be becoming, and it certainly would be a relief. I have worn almost nothing but dark blue for twenty years."

"I like you best in blue," he answered in a placid tone of finality. "Have the bills for the month come in? I want to pay them before I leave."

"Yes, here they are," and she produced a small account book and bundle of papers. "When do you leave again?" asked Mrs. Marston, absently.

"I go Thursday morning, and shall be gone ten days this time," he answered, as he lit his cigar and sank into an easy chair before the blazing grate.

The children disappeared. When father was at home they never lingered in the living room, as he was sensitive to noise.

All their married life Mrs. Marston had bent every energy to making the short stays at home between trips as nearly perfect as possible. The children were never allowed to disturb him and the dishes he liked were served. A complete chart of his likes and dislikes was in the forefront of her consciousness and through the intricate passages she steered the course of her life.

Thursday morning after her husband's departure, she walked to the business square of the little town and entering the postoffice asked permission to post a notice. The obliging postmaster called a clerk to attend to the matter. Mrs. Marston waited, however, to see the notice up. It read:

"To aid missions and other worthy causes there will be a sale at the home of Mrs. G. T. Marston on Friday, Nov. 12, from two to six. Select

WOMEN HAVE FOUND HOW TO CHOOSE LIFE WORK

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., October 21.—If I don't teach, what shall I do? Is no longer so momentous a question for the girl, as it once was. There are so many things she may do. And more and more brains are thinking with her and for her and helping her to choose wisely.

Four years ago the University of Wisconsin has held an annual three-day vocational conference for women, securing speakers of national reputation engaged in actual service along the various vocational lines. This year the vocational conference advisor offers to discuss questions of vocational import with any girl at her daily office hour, advising her as to shaping her course, etc. She is also in position to advise as to the opportunities afforded by the various fields.

From present indications it is practically certain that one day of this winter's conference will be held February 10, 11, 12, will be devoted to social service and another to home economics and allied subjects, the third dealing perhaps with miscellaneous topics. Committees have been appointed and are set at work ascertaining the interest of the woman student body in vocational questions, and arranging for speakers.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

"Of course! Of course they stopped!" exclaimed Westerling. "They are not mad. A few are not going to throw themselves against superior numbers."

In the headquarters of the Browns, junior officers and clerks reported the words of each bulletin with the relief of men who breathed freely again. The chiefs of divisions who were with Lanstron alternately sat down and paced the floor, their restlessness now that of a happiness too deeply thrilling to be expressed by hilarity. Each fresh detail only confirmed the completeness of the repulse as that memorable night in the affairs of the two nations slowly wore on. Shortly before three, when the firing had died after the Brown pursuit had slipped, a wireless from a dirigible flying over the frontier came, telling of bodies of Gray troops and guns on the march. Soon planes and other dirigibles flying over other positions were sending in word of the same tenor. The chiefs drew around the table and looked into one another's eyes in the significance of a common thought.

"A Whole Brigade Mine! Live!"

our superior numbers beaten by our own panic! Lanstron is not a fool. You'll find the Browns back in their old position, working like beavers to make new defenses in the morning. Meanwhile, we'll get that mob of ours into shape and find out what made them lose their nerve. To-morrow night we shall have as many more behind them. We are going to attack again!"

The staff exchanged glances of amazement, and Turcas, his dry voice crackling like parchment, exclaimed: "Attack again? At the same point?"

"Yes—the one place to attack!" said Westerling. "The rest of our line has abundant reserves; a needless number for anything but the offensive. We'll leave enough to hold and draw off the rest to Engadir at once."

"But their dirigibles! A surprising number of them are over our lines," Bellini, the chief of intelligence, had the temerity to say.

"You will send our planes and dirigibles to bring down theirs!" Westerling commanded.

"I have—every last one; but they outnumber us!" persisted Bellini.

"Even in retreat they can see. The air has cleared so that considerable bodies of troops in motion will be readily discernible from high altitudes. The reason for our failure last night was that they knew our plan of attack."

"They knew! They knew, after all our precautions! There is still a leak! You—"

Westerling raised, his clenched hand threateningly at the chief of intelligence, his cheeks purple with rage, his eyes bloodshot. But Bellini, with his boyish, small face and round head set close to his shoulders, remained undisturbedly exact.

"Yes, there is a leak, and from the staff," he answered. "Until I have found it this army ought to suspend any aggressive—"

"I was not asking advice!" interrupted Westerling.

"But, I repeat, the leak is not necessary to disclose this new movement that you plan. Their air craft will disclose it," Bellini concluded. He had done his duty and had nothing more to say.

"Dirigibles do not win battles!" Westerling announced. "They are won by getting infantry in possession of positions and holding them. No matter as we don't surprise the enemy."

Haven't the Browns held their line with inferior numbers? If they have, we can hold the rest of ours. That gives us overwhelming forces at Engadir."

"You take all responsibility!" asked Turcas.

"I do!" said Westerling firmly. "And we will waste no more time. The premier supports me. I have decided. We will set the troops in motion."

With fierce energy he set to work detaching units of artillery and infantry from every part of the line and starting them toward Engadir.

"This means an improvised organization; it breaks up the machine," said the tactical expert to Turcas when they were alone.

"Yes," replied Turcas. "He wanted no advice from us when he was taking counsel of desperation. If he succeeds, success will retrieve all the rest of his errors. We may have a stroke of luck in our favor."

In the headquarters of the Browns, junior officers and clerks reported the words of each bulletin with the relief of men who breathed freely again. The chiefs of divisions who were with Lanstron alternately sat down and paced the floor, their restlessness now that of a happiness too deeply thrilling to be expressed by hilarity. Each fresh detail only confirmed the completeness of the repulse as that memorable night in the affairs of the two nations slowly wore on. Shortly before three, when the firing had died after the Brown pursuit had slipped, a wireless from a dirigible flying over the frontier came, telling of bodies of Gray troops and guns on the march. Soon planes and other dirigibles flying over other positions were sending in word of the same tenor. The chiefs drew around the table and looked into one another's eyes in the significance of a common thought.

"It cannot be a retreat!" said the vice-chief.

"Hardly. That is inconceivable of Westerling at this time," Lanstron replied. "The bull charges when wounded. It is clear that he means to make another attack. These troops on the march across country are isolated from any immediate service."

It was Lanstron's way to be suggestive; to let ideas develop in council and orders follow as out of council.

"The chance!" exclaimed some one. "The chance!" others said in the same breath. "The God-given chance for a quick blow! The chance! We attack! We attack!"

It was the most natural conception to a military tactician, though any man who made it his own might have built a reputation on it if he knew how to get the ear of the press. Their faces were close to Lanstron as they leaned toward him eagerly. He seemed not to see them but to be looking at Partow's chair. In imagination Partow was there in life—Partow with the dome forehead, the pendulous cheeks, the shrewd, kindly eyes. A daring risk, this! What would Partow say? Lanstron always asked himself this in a crisis: What would Partow say?

"Well, my boy, why are you hesitating?" Partow demanded. "I don't know that I'd have taken my long holiday and left you in charge if I'd thought you'd be losing your nerve as you are this minute. Wasn't it part of my plan—a dream—that plan I gave you to read in the vaults, to strike if a chance, this very chance, were to come? Hurry up! Seconds count!"

"Yes, a chance to end the killing for good and all!" said Lanstron, coming abruptly out of his silence. "We'll take it and strike hard."

The staff bent over the map. Lanstron's finger flying from point to point, while ready expert answers to his questions were at his elbow and the wires sang out directions that made a drenched and shivering soldiery who had been yielding and holding and never advancing grow warm with the thought of springing from the mire of trenches to charge the enemy.

And one, Gustavo Felier, in command of a brigade of field-guns—the mobile guns that could go forward rumbling to the horses' trot—saw his dearly beloved batteries swing into a road in the moonlight.

"La, la, la! The worm will turn!" he chuckled. "It's a merry, gambling old world and I'm right fond of it—so full of the unexpected for the Grays! That lead horse is a little lame, but he'll last the night through. Lots of lame things will! Who knows? Maybe we'll be cleaning the mud off our boots on the white posts of the frontier to-morrow! A whole brigade mine! I live! You old brick, Lanstron! This time we are going to spank the enemy on the part of his anatomy where spunks are conventionally given. La, la, la!"

CHAPTER XX.

Turning the Tables.

Through the door which the aide had left open the division chiefs, led by Turcas, filed in. To Westerling they seemed like a procession of ghosts. The features of one were the features of all, graven with the weariness of the machine's treadmill. Their harness held them up. A moving platform under their feet kept their legs moving. They grouped around the great man's desk silently. Turcas, his lips a half-opened seam, his voice that of crinkling parchment, acting as spokesman.

"The enemy seized his advantage," he said, "when he found that our reserves were on the march, out of touch with the wire to headquarters."

Westerling forced a smile which he wanted to be a knowing smile.

"However, we had not prepared our positions for the defensive," continued that very literal parchment voice.

"They began an assault on our left flank first, and we've just had word that they have turned it. Nor is that the worst of it. They are pressing at other well-chosen points. They threaten to pierce our center."

"Our center!" gibed Westerling. "You need rest. Our center, where we have the column of last night's attack still concentrated! If anything would convince me that I have to fight this war alone—I—" Westerling choked in irritation.

"Yes. The ground is such that it is a tactically safe and advantageous move for Lanstron to make. He strikes at the vitals of our machine."

"But what about the remainder of the force that made the charge? What about all our guns concentrated in front of Engadir?"

"I was coming to that. The rout of the assaulting column was much worse than we had supposed. Those who are strong enough cannot be got to reform. Many were so exhausted that they dropped in their tracks. Our guns are at this moment in retreat—or being captured by the rush of the Browns' infantry. Your Excellency, the crisis is sudden, incredible."

"Our wire service has broken down. We cannot communicate with many of our division commanders," put in Bellini, the chief of intelligence.

"Yes, our organization, so dependent on communication, is in danger of disruption," concluded Turcas. "To avoid disorder, we think it best to retreat across the plain to our own range."

At the word "retreat" Westerling sprang to his feet, his cheeks purple, the veins of his neck and temples sculptured as he took a threatening step toward the group, which fell back before the physical rage of the man, all except the vice-chief, his mouth a thin, ashy line, who held his own.

"You cowards!" Westerling thundered. "Retreat when we have five millions to their three!"

"We have not that odds now," replied the parchment voice. "All their men are engaged. They have caught us at a disadvantage, unable to use our numbers except in detail in trying to hold on in face of—"

"I tell you we cannot retreat!" Westerling interrupted. "That is the end. I know what you do not know. I am in touch with the government. Yes, I know—"

This brought fresh alarm into faces which had become set in grim stolidism by many alarms. If the people were in ignorance of the losses and the army in ignorance of the nation's feeling, the officers of the staff were no less in ignorance of what passed over the long-distance wire between the chief of staff and the premier.

"I know what is best—I alone!" Westerling continued, driving home his point. "Tell our commanders to hold. Neither general nor man is to budge. They are to stick to the death. Any one who does not I shall hold up to public shame as a poltroon. Who knows but Lanstron's attack may be a council of desperation? The Browns may be worse off than we are. Hold, hold! If we are tired, they are tired. Frequently it takes only an ounce more of resolution to turn the tide of battle. Hold, hold! To-morrow will tell a different story! We are going to win yet! Yes, we are going to win!"

"It is for you to decide, Your Excellency," said Turcas, slowly and precisely. "You take the responsibility."

"I take the responsibility. I am in command!" replied Westerling in unflinching pose.

"Yes, Your Excellency."

And they filed out of the room, leaving him to his isolation.

After Marta had learned, over the telephone, from Lanstron of the certain repulse of the Gray assault, fatigue—sheer physical fatigue such as made soldiers drop dead in slumber on the earth, their packs still on their backs—overcame her. Her work was done.

The demands of nature overwheeled her faculties. She slept with a nervous twitching of her muscles, a restless tossing of her little body, until hammers began beating on her temples, beating, beating with the sound of shell-bursts, as if to warn her that punishment for her share in the killing was to be the eternal concussion of battle in her ears. At length she realized that the cannonading was real.

Hastening out-of-doors, as her glance swept toward the range she saw bursts of shrapnel smoke from the guns of the Browns nearer than since the fighting had begun on the main line, and these were directed at bodies of infantry that were in confused retreat down the slopes, while all traffic on the pass road was moving toward the rear. Impelled by a new apprehension she hurried to the tunnel. Lanstron answered her promptly in a voice that had a ring of relief and joy in place of the tension that had characterized it since the outbreak of the war.

"Thanks to you, Marta!" he cried. "Everything goes back to you—thanks to you came this chance to attack, and we are succeeding at every point! You are the general, you the maker of victories!"

EXPERIENCES OF NOBLE WOMEN IN EUROPE.

The horrible experiences that many noble women in Europe have endured during past few months can never be all told. Here in America many women, both young and old, have experienced much misery and suffering.

Middle aged women about to experience that dreaded change of life should profit by the experience of thousands of noble women who have gone through the same period with little or no pain, misery or discomfort.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is and has been for over 40 years just the medicine that every woman needs when passing through the changing days. It is not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper; it's a temperance medicine.

Not only does it build up the entire system and make it strong and vigorous enough to withstand the organic disturbances, but it has a quieting effect upon the feminine organism that reduces the distress to a minimum.

For any womanly ailment, disease or complaint, no matter how long standing we advise anxious women to get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in either liquid or tablet form.

NO CHARGE FOR THIS BOOK.

If you will send 20 cents, or stamps, to pay for wrapping and mailing and enclose this notice Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send you a revised copy of his Common Sense Medical Adviser, in cloth binding, 1008 pages, with color plates. Just what you need in case of sickness or accident. Treats of Physiology, Anatomy, Sex problems, Marriage relations, Hygiene, Exercise, Disease and its prevention.

Hearing Heart Beats. If you hear your heart beat in one ear, as many persons do, it is no proof of anything wrong with the heart. It is much more likely to be a local defect such as a chronic catarrh of the middle ear or stiffness and retraction of the drum. This is on the authority of a leading physician of Chicago.

Philosophy and Religion. Philosophy, says a writer, is a buffy that talks very loud, when the danger is at a distance; but the moment she is hard pressed by the enemy, she is not to be found at her post, but leaves the brunt of the battle to be borne by her humbler but steadier comrade, religion.

A man who was a scientific raiser of blooded stock gave a short talk at a farmer's meeting in which he laid great stress on the necessity of advertising; on the urgent need of stamping indelibly on the mind of the public the fact that he was in this special line of business, and was in to stay. Persistent advertising creates confidence; a demand for ones' goods and a reputation that is eventually, the very best kind of an investment.

It is all very well for Emerson to say that if you have the ability to do one thing extremely well, the world will, though you live in a forest, make a track to your door. In these days, when in all walks of life, competition is apt to be keen, the wise, far-seeing business man does not put his light under a bushel; he rather endeavors to turn the searchlight of publicity on his ways and wares. No more effectual means to accomplish this can possibly be had than the columns of your home town paper. A farmer who allows this modern method to slip by unused is a farmer who will be eating up the dust of his neighbor's car as he jogs along in his little buggy that was the last word when Adam invited Eve to go riding—if he did.

Mr. Farmer, are you keenly alive to the possibilities of this page?

HOW TO PRONOUNCE PLACES GIVEN IN WAR DISPATCHES

Attempt Made to Show How Names of Places Figuring in War Reports Should Be Pronounced.

Pronouncing war names is the newest and most popular form of amusement these days. Some of the jaw-breakers and tongue-twisters uncovered for the first time by the European war have been given as many different pronunciations by the general public.

Therefore, an attempt has been made, in the list which follows below, to give the correct, or at least as near correct as possible, pronunciation of the names that one sees every day or two of the conflict raging in Europe.

It should be borne in mind, however, that it is utterly impossible to indicate exactly the sounds employed in pronouncing some of the names. Some of them you can't describe in the English language.

Here is one for which a professor stands responsible: The French U sound (equivalent to the German U with the umlaut mark) has no equivalent in English. To make the sound pursue the lips as though to say O but say E instead. The combination produces the French sounding of U.

The French and Belgian names are as a rule accented on all syllables. To an American they would sound as though they were accented on the last syllable. The Austrian words are generally accented on the first syllable.

In the list below will be found some words marked nasal. To get the correct sound for instance, in the French word mon (mōn) it is pronounced as though spelled mawn, the letter n, however, not being sounded, the word dying away with a nasal twang. It is as though the end of the word tried to creep out through your nose but got stuck there. Following is the list of words with the pronunciation, given as clearly as possible:

- French and Belgian.

What Happened to the Cats?

Not long ago the U. S. Gov't. made some experiments to determine the poisoning qualities of caffeine (the drug in coffee).

Twenty-seven healthy cats were given an average dose of 5.45 grains of caffeine—about as much of the drug as is contained in 2 cups of coffee.

What do you suppose happened?

The Cats all Died!

See Gov't. Bulletin No. 148, Bureau of Chemistry.

Of course they were only cats.

But there are plenty of people who dose themselves with enough caffeine every day to kill a cat and Cripple a Man, not at one blow, but by little blows repeated daily.

Of course some systems are strong enough to stand all kinds of abuse, but most systems are not. And when a man or woman observes a growing nervousness or sleeplessness, heart trouble, stomach, bowel or eye disturbance, it is time to quit coffee and turn to a real food-drink, free from the coffee-drug, "caffeine."

It is easy to shift from coffee to

for in POSTUM one gets a delicious drink with the true nourishment of whole wheat from which it is made. Postum is roasted (like coffee) with a bit of wholesome molasses, looks like coffee and has a delightful flavour resembling Old Dutch Java, but is entirely from the coffee-drug, caffeine, or any other drug or harmful substance.

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum which must be boiled. Instant Postum—soluble form—made in the cup instantly with hot water. Grocers sell both kinds and the cost per cup is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

FRUIT LAXATIVE IF COSTIVE, BILIOUS, HEADACHY—"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Best liver and bowel regulator for mamma, daddy and children.

If you're headachy, constipated, bilious or stomach is disordered and you want to enjoy the nicest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced, take a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" to-night and in the morning all the constipation poison, bile and clogged-up waste will gently move out of the system without griping and you will feel splendid.

Every member of the family should use this fruit laxative as occasion demands. It is just effective for grandpa as it is for baby. It simply can not injure. Even cross, sick, feverish children just love its pleasant taste and mothers can rest easy after giving because it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing."

For thirty years "California Syrup of Figs" has been recommended by physicians as the ideal stomach, liver and bowel cleanser. Millions of families who are well informed use nothing else, but recently there has come a flood of spurious fig syrups, so we warn the public to ask plainly at drug stores for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," and see that it is prepared by "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Hand back any "count-erfeit" with contempt.

LACK OF SEED MAY PREVENT PLANTING

BET SEED IS GROWN IN GER. MANY—WAR CUTS OFF SUPPLY.

A SERIOUS SITUATION

United States Consumes One Quarter of the World's Production.—Some Importations Coming.

Announcement from Waukesha, that the officials of the Wisconsin Sugar Company, located at Menomonie Falls, say that it is doubtful if Wisconsin planters of sugar beets and manufacturers of beet sugar will continue the industry, even to the advance in price and scarcity of the product due to the European war, unless President Wilson gives some assurance that the free sugar clause of the Underwood bill is repealed, does not materially interest Janesville and Rock county beet growers owing to the fact the local factory has been closed all this season.

It is a question whether the sugar beet factories could continue in business next year even if the tariff provision was removed owing to a lack of beet seed. A. E. Stevens, who was connected with the American Sugar Beet Company, with headquarters at Denver, Colorado, visited Janesville recently for ten days and freely discussed the situation. "It is perhaps not generally known," said Mr. Stevens, "but the beet seed all comes from Germany. Not only that, but from one little district near Berlin. This will practically prohibit the exportation of the seed even if the beet sugar mills continue in business."

Beet seed is a two year crop. The planting for next year was begun in 1912, and is the product of the most careful culture. True, there is some beet seed that comes from France and Russia, but it is doubtful if even this would be available under present conditions. However, the American beet growers have found that the French and Russian seed is not as adapted to American conditions as the German.

No beet seed is grown in the United States, in fact while experiments have been made with a view of producing a seed that would meet local crop conditions, it was not successful. The result did not have a large enough percentage of germination to make it successful. One experimenter, a most successful beet grower, tried for two seasons to produce a seed but failed. He asked one of the leading sugar companies to make his experiments by making an appropriation of several thousand dollars a year for a period of ten to twelve years, but they thought it was too much time, and did not accept it. Perhaps now they wish they had.

"The American sugar factories do not produce enough sugar for the United States alone. Aside from the 35,000,000 tons of beet sugar produced, the 30,000,000 of cane sugar grown in the United States, Cuba furnishes 20,000,000 tons, Hawaii 8,000,000 and Germany approximately 15,000,000 tons. Making a grand total of roughly speaking 100,000,000 tons consumed in the United States alone.

"Even if the tariff were raised the great trouble with the beet growers would be to obtain seed for planting and of the factories to supply it. It would appear that aside from the war prices, the impossibility of procuring suitable seed will be a factor in the near future. If the war continues it will mean that the seed beds of Europe will be depleted and it will be years before Germany is ready to again supply the world."

Mr. Stevens did not inspect the Rock county factory but knew of its equipment and capabilities, and considered it unfortunate that it had been closed this year when its product would have commanded such a high price and would have materially aided in keeping up the visible supply. With the United States using practically one quarter of the world's production and with Germany furnishing a goodly proportion of that it can be readily seen what the shortage will mean.

Today's dispatches, however, announce that several thousands of tons of raw sugar, the product of German factories, is ready for exportation to neutral countries and that it will be shipped via Rotterdam. This will relieve the tension somewhat, but next year's crop is what is bothering the sugar people.

LEYDEN

Leyden, Oct. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Jess Gilbert very pleasantly entertained their friends at their home Friday night at a dancing party. The inclement weather quite a crowd was present. At midnight a delicious supper was served. Dancing was indulged in until early morning, and everyone reported a fine time. Messrs. Fred Lay and P. S. Wold furnished the music.

Mrs. Watson and daughters of Stoughton were week end guests at the home of Jess Gilbert.

There was a school Thursday and Friday. The teachers, Miss Josephine Pederson attended the wedding of her sister in Janesville.

Miss Blanche Wheeler and Arthur Greene of Porter and Andrew Nelson of Edgerton were Saturday callers at the home of P. S. Wold.

Mrs. Fred Demrow and children of Center spent Sunday at the home of Will Adee.

A number from here went hunting at Gibb's Lake on Sunday.

Fred Lay and P. S. Wold were Janesville callers Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Lay was a Janesville shopper Monday.

Alvonia—The best seaport on the Albanian coast and the nearest to Italy on the Gulf of Alvonia, supposed to be the ancient Aulon of the Greeks. The town is 53 miles across the Strait of Otranto from Italy and is protected by the island of Saseno. It is about a half an hour's walk from the sea, and is picturesquely situated in the midst of gardens and olive groves. Nearby marshes and rice grounds render the atmosphere unhealthy and the town presents a deserted appearance in the hot season. The district produces grain, cotton, olive oil, cattle, sheep, skins, hides and butter. An earthquake did considerable damage to Alvonia in 1831. Its present population is about 10,000.

Zvornik—A Bosnian town, two miles from the Serbian border, 38 miles northeast of Sarajevo and 33 miles southwest of Shabatz, on the left bank of the Drina river. It has a population of about 20,000. Zvornik was formerly well protected by strong fortifications and two castles. It has several manufacturing and an active trade in timber with Belgrade and Semlin. There are numerous argenterous lead mines in the vicinity.

Maramoros—A district of Hungary, whose principal town, Sziget, is 32 miles from the Galician border. The district has an area of 3,370 square miles and is extremely hilly. The Carpathian Mountains traversing it from end to end, its inhabitants subsist by raising immense herds of sheep on the mountain pastures, by selling timber and by mining salt.

Sziget—A town of northwestern Hungary, the capital of the district of Maramoros, on the Thess river, at the foot of the Carpathian Mountains. The town is 215 miles east of Budapest and 32 miles from the Galician border. It is a depot for the salt mined at Ronaszek, Szalatna and Saggat. It is also a busy center of the lumber trade. It has a population of about 19,000, one-third of whom are Jews.

Duffel—A Belgian town, 11 miles south of southeast of Antwerp, on the right bank of the Nethe, near the railway line connecting Antwerp and Brussels. The town's chief point of interest is its annual fair which attracts people from all parts of north and east central Belgium. Duffel has extensive manufacturing of linen, beer, gin and vinegar. Its population is close to 10,000.

Taiwan—A Chinese city, the capital of Shantung province, on the Whang Ho river, 100 miles from its mouth at the Gulf of Pechili. The town is noted for its silks and glassware. It also has a large trade in precious stones. Its population is estimated to be between 260,000 and 300,000.

Near-Laurels.

A certain major in the Philippines, who seemed to be favored with the good-will of the powers, managed in some way always to get leave just before trouble with the natives was due. His colonel suspected him of having no stomach for fighting. "Some day," remarked the colonel, "they'll want to give that fellow a decoration, and I'll suggest one. It will be a wreath of leaves of absence."

Duel Was Called Off.

A young bachelor who was staying at a fashionable spa near Dresden was challenged to a duel by the husband of a young woman with whom he had flirted. The bachelor, who is an expert amateur boxer, replied that the challenge was accepted under the usual conditions—namely, choice of weapons. His choice was for four-ounce boxing gloves. The husband sent word that "the matter may now be considered as settled."

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect, and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not grip or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. NOTICE OF GENERAL ELECTION

To the Electors of Rock County:

Office of County Clerk,
Janesville, Wisconsin, October 21st, 1914.

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the county of Rock, on the 4th day of November, 1914, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party of other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: (a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(d) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minute's time is allowed both to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(e) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(f) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. Their presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability.

(g) The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

Germany To Prepare To Invade England With Zeppelin Fleet

(By Courier Via Maastricht and Rotterdam to New York.)

Liege, Oct. 21.—That Germany is preparing an aerial attack or invasion of England with her fleet of Zeppelins, is the general impression among officers here, so far there are no reports of them to express an opinion. That same impression is in the public mind in Berlin and elsewhere. Where are all those Zeppelins and what are they doing? I asked a member of the Flying Corps. "Just wait and see," he replied. "England gave us a little surprise off Heligoland. We will give her a little surprise before long."

There appear to be but few Zeppelins with the armies in the field. It is dangerous to ask questions or seek information but indications are, and I have been told from various sources, that the Zeppelins are being concentrated close to the North Sea. It is said that the completion of several new Zeppelins is being awaited.

Just how many Zeppelins Germany has, no one outside of the government knows. Before the war, the official reports were less than the real reasons for believing that Germany has more, in fact many more. The Zeppelins and the 42 centimeter mortar, are the two mysteries of the war. The stories that are about the Zeppelins are that the manufactured parts of a large number of Zeppelins have been made at the Zeppelin Works in Friedrichshafen and stored ready to be put together when the emergency arose. The Zeppelin Works are said to be working day and night. Both in Berlin and here I have been told that Germany has now a fleet of 64 aerial cruisers. From other sources it was told that as soon as a fleet of 20 Zeppelins could be sent across the Channel, the aerial attack on England will begin.

That the Germans will make some daring coup with their aerial fleet and that in the near future, there is some reason for believing, it is quite possible that they are merely waiting for a suitable base, Antwerp, Ostend or Calais. The stories of the number Zeppelins Germany now has, must be taken for what they are worth. Aside from the undoubted fact that Zeppelins are being turned out as fast as possible, no one knows anything about the size of the fleet except the government officials and they won't tell.

In some quarters the opinion prevails that the English fleet will be attacked by the Zeppelin fleet or simultaneously by the Zeppelins and the German fleet. In other words, the big battle will be fought in the air, on the sea and under the sea, all at the same time.

Although it is somewhat early to draw conclusions, the Zeppelins have shown in Liege and Antwerp that as a weapon of offense they far surpass the aeroplanes. This also has been stated to me by members of the Flying Corps, who have declared that the scouting and reconnoitering of the German "Cavalry of the Air," has contributed largely to the German successes, but that as offensive weapons the Zeppelins are far superior.

The German aeroplanes carry 12 one and four pound bombs hung in racks on the sides of the machine. The dropping of these bombs through the air sets a little propeller into motion which screws in the contact point or "primer" so that the bomb will explode upon hitting any object. Until the "primer" or "contact" is screwed in by the propeller, the bomb is "safe." Thus a forced landing or smash-up of the aeroplane would not explode the bombs carried. The Zeppelin artillery, as explained to me, consists of bombs or shells from 24 to 36 inches in length and about 10 inches in diameter. They are filled with a high explosive. Dropped on the thinly protected deck of a battleship, it is said they would go through the ship. The American press, so far as I could judge from the first papers received in many of our cities, has practically destroyed the entire German fleet of Zeppelins. It seems to have been a poor day when not more than one Zeppelin was shot down by the French or Belgians. It is quite possible that we are less informed in Germany, but there is every reason for doubting this wholesale destruction of the Zeppelins. So far as I have watched events, there is a possibility that two may have been destroyed but there is no proof of it and very little to base the supposition on. The government flimsy denies that it has lost a single Zeppelin so far. It also denies the report of the loss of the Zeppelin which terrorized Antwerp. Members of the German Flying Corps who have been under fire many times in this war and with whom I have talked, say that there is little to fear from rifle and machine guns fire when flying at an altitude of not less than 4,000 feet. Sergeant Werner, the first pilot who flew over Paris, said he had 25 patches on the wings of his monoplane—scars of the enemy bullets. He declared he had been his experience and that of other flyers, that at an altitude of 4,000 feet a bullet has little or no force or impact left. As he put it "you can almost catch them in your hand."

GUNBOAT SMITH QUITS
IN MATCH WITO LANGFORD

Sam Langford, the negro heavy-weight, last night defeated Gunboat Smith, rounding the white hope so much that Smith took the count in the third round. The bout was scheduled for ten rounds before a Boston club.

Smith never had a chance against the speedy black, who gave the white boxer a terrific beating and in the third round Smith crawled into a corner and listened to the referee count ten, which relegated him into the "has been" class.

The bout between Ad Wolgast and Tommy Gary at Streator, Illinois, has been postponed until Oct. 26. Rumors have it that Wolgast and Welsh will be matched in the east on Nov. 2, which is before the White match in Milwaukee.

WAR IN EUROPE AFFECTS EXTENSION STUDENTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—The wave of popular interest in historical subjects aroused by the European war is distinctly felt by the correspondence study department of the University of Wisconsin Extension division.

"Our guided study club programs are growing in favor over the state," says W. H. Lighty, secretary. "Home economics, history, literature, and civics are the more popular subjects, with history dominant just now."

One club devoted three years to the study of French history. Several others will take up a second year of consecutive work on varied topics this fall.

In the guided study programs the clubs are privileged to report as fre-

THE FACT that we have sold several car-loads of these excellent furnaces in Janesville should be sufficient evidence that one should be purchased by anyone expecting to install a furnace.

MAKE YOUR HOME THE ONE BRIGHT SPOT

The season has now arrived when we are more or less in need of good light for the home office, or factory.

We are offering a splendid house wiring proposition at very reasonable terms, and to the office and factory man we wish to state that we want you to take advantage of our service by asking us to suggest ways and means for improving your present lighting scheme or for figures on a new and modern one.

Janesville Contracting Co.

So many people suffer from weak, inactive sluggish kidneys, and don't know what ails them. All tired out and miserable—run down and nervous—sleep poorly and no appetite—pain in back and sides—swollen ankles and joints—bladder weaknesses—that's kidney trouble. You need the medicine that stops the cause of your trouble. That's exactly what FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS do.

They are tonic and strengthening, build up your kidneys, reduce swellings, make you feel fit, active and energetic again. They are a wonder to those using them. Try them yourself. Contain no habit forming drugs. Do not accept a substitute.

quently as they wish to the expert in charge of their work and may ask as many questions and seek as many suggestions as they like. It is desirable that the season's work shall start off with an explanatory lecture by the director, but this is optional. Other lectures may be had during the course if desired.

CITY ICE BOX, LATEST
BLOW AIMED AT H. C. OF L.

Cleveland, October 21.—Municipal Cleveland has developed a new municipal quick to reduce the well-known high cost of living. It's the municipal ice box, a huge refrigerating plant at one of the city owned markets. Cleveland housewives can now buy fruit, vegetables and eggs at summer and autumn prices. At a very small cost these commodities can be stored in the municipal ice box, and when mid-winter finds prices of food stuffs almost to the like they can be taken out just as good as new. The municipal cold storage is a new idea originating with J. M. McCurdy, superintendent of the plant. Many housewives have already formed clubs to take advantage of the city's offer.

Sell your house or any other piece of real estate you may have through the want ad column—the cost is but a trifle.
